

CORIAN® IS A KOSHER SURFACE

A kosher certification agency is an organization of rabbis, food technologists and field supervisors with the expertise and resources to execute the Laws of Kashrus. The agency is responsible for assuring kosher consumers that food products, ingredients and equipment meet all kosher requirements. Once these requirements have been met, a letter of certification is issued to the manufacturer who is then authorized to advertise its kosher status, and display the kosher symbol and promote the product as kosher.

The manufacturing procedures and raw materials used in the production of Corian® solid surfaces have been reviewed by the kosher certification agency, Star-K, and are certified kosher and approved for use in kosher homes.

If they were used previously for non-Kosher uses, or for use on Passover, one should consult a rabbinical authority.
